Los Angeles Wants PV Site for High School

The problem of the disputed Lunada Bay site for the proposed Palos Verdes High School will once again be spotlighted today, it was announced by Los Angeles Superintendent of Schools Ellis A. Jarvis.

The latest move will come this afternoon before the Los Angeles City Board of Education, when Jarvis will recommend that the Board of Education officially request the Palos Verdes Elementary School District that they declare surplus and turn over to the Los Angeles City Schools the disputed site proposed for the Palos Verdes Senior High School.

Jarvis' recommendation to his Board will come as a result of a recent new ruling issued by the County Counsel, which in the superintendent's opinion, paves the way for Palos Verdes to deed the property to Los Angeles.

If this action is taken by the Palos Verdes District, the Los Angeles City Schools will reaffirm their commitment of last year—that an architect will be immediately appointed and construction expedited so a school can be open as soon as possible for the convenience of children in the Palos Verdes area.

The ruling—actually a clarification of a previous County Counsel opinion involving the Palos Verdes Senior High School controversy—holds that the term "adequate consideration" used in the previous ruling can be fulfilled by a commitment on the part of the Los Angeles Schools that they will build and operate a high school site, on the involved property.

Now being held in trust by the Palos Verdes District, the land in question is known as the "lower site" and is bounded by Via Pacheco, Chelsea Road, Montemalaga Road, and Dalton Road.

"We submit that this property which is a public asset should be conveyed to the Los Angeles City High School District so that it will no longer remain idle and useless, but may be used for the purpose for which it was intended by the original grantors—a high school," Jarvis told the Board in presenting his recommendation.

In order to turn over the property to the Los Angeles

Schools, the Palos Verdes School Board must render a finding that this property is not needed for classrooms for the local district.

"It is difficult for us to understand how the Palos Verdes School District—despite earlier statements that the property is needed for expansion—can make a contrary finding, inasmuch as it already owns an elementary school site approximately one half mile from the subject property," Jarvis told his Board of Education.

Lions Club to View Replica of Navy Satellite

The power of a grain of sand and a ray of sunlight will be visibly proved at the August 5 gathering of Torrance Lions by Richard Sanchez of Pacific Telephone.

Armed with a working array of modern-day miracles, Sanchez will present a non-technical, simple-language story of the science of solids.

An exact replica of an American satellite, made from the same dies as the Navy "Vanguard" satellite, shows how the transistor and solar battery team up to provide power in outer space. The sphere will give off regulation "beeps" when passed under a sun lamp.

Included in the program are examples of the use of transistors in telephony and a demonstration of how a solar battery made from common sand actually furnishes power to operate a telephone system.
